

Knowing to Manage the territory

Protect the environment

Evaluate the cultural heritage invitation

I'm particularly glad to address to You this invitation to the thirty-fifth Working Week that will take place in Rome, from the 6th to the 11th of May in 2012. Italy and the Italian Surveyors want to talk to You about the universally-spread values that constitute the basis of our being together: human rights protection, environmental preservation, respect for the identity and the culture of everyone, and, last but not least, solidarity among the Nations and the different generations. It's according to these values that we chose the subject of our Italian Working Week: "Knowing to manage the territory, protect the environment, evaluate the cultural heritage". The CNGGL delegation at the FIG Working Week in Marrakech was particular numerous, and most of its members are young people. They are all active in different FIG Commissions and truly embody the idea of "Young Surveyor". These young people represent the future and will assure the continuity of our Category and of the FIG. It will be up to them to make you visit the artistic treasures in Rome and to let you know a culture that contributed so much to the creation of our modern society. Knowledge is the true and precious condition able to bring education to beauty, to a correct management of the environment, of the territory and of the cultural heritage. Therefore, the theme of the FIG Working Week is focused on this particular topic meant to live in the respect of the present human generation and, above all, of the future one. The Italian Surveyors look forward to meeting their colleagues coming from all the world in 2012!

Fausto Savoldi
CNGGL PRESIDENT

Greetings from FIG.

Our 2012 Working Week and the 35th General Assembly will be held at the Rome Cavalleri Hotel in Rome. The Working Week is jointly organized by FIG and Consiglio Nazionale Geometri e Geometri

Laureati (CNGGL) where we expect to have more than 1,000 participants from all over the world to this city full of history and art, culture and cuisine.

"Knowing to manage the territory, protect the environment and evaluate the cultural heritage" has been selected as the themes of the conference, addressing the many of the challenges of the times. I am happy to announce that FAO (the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization) has confirmed its contribution to the conference as our major partner and we can expect joint FAO/FIG special workshop and activities. The Working Week in Rome will also introduce the inaugural FIG Young Surveyors Conference that will be held on 4-5 May 2011, allowing young professionals and tertiary students an excellent opportunity to be engage with the international surveying community. The second Working Week under the current FIG Council will include both high profile professional and scientific programme, administrative meetings including elections for the Council and Commissions as well as some exciting social and cultural events. A highlight will be the opening ceremony at the Parco della Musica.

I look forward to welcoming you to Rome in May 2012.
