INTRODUCTION

Register of persons, address register, real estate cadastre and land registry are four basic registers on which an administrative system of every orderly country is based. The data in those registers are the basis for the daily work of different authorities, banks, public enterprises, lawyers, notaries public and other entities. In modern societies, the registers are connected in a way that the data are taken automatically from a civil registry. Here, in Bosnia and Herzegovina, it is still in practice to enter the data on persons manually when making an entry in the land register, even though the civil registry and the register of legal entities with all the necessary data exist. It is a similar procedure in all other situations when the data from one register are used for the maintenance of another one. There has been a need for the interconnection of the registers since the data in the real estate cadastre and the land register were digitized. Many activities have been undertaken in order to establish an address register in Bosnia and Herzegovina and connect it with a register of persons so as to ensure a precise connection of a person and their residence. The existence of all four registers in digital form requires their interconnection in all situations as the data from one register are necessary for the maintenance of another one. This necessity made us choose the basic public registers and their interconnectivity as the main determinant of the Fourth Congress on the Cadastre.

It is safe to say that in the past four years great progress has been made in the field of land administration. The Registration of Real Estate project, through which the cadastre and the land registry in more than 250 cadastral municipalities will be coordinated, is being successfully implemented. In most local governments an address register is being established. A register of real estate prices has been established as a basis for the future mass real estate evaluation. The archive of cadastre and land register is being scanned in order to establish a digital archive system. The need for building spatial data infrastructure has been recognized as a significant component in preparing Bosnia and Herzegovina for EU membership.

This notice represents the beginning of activities on the organisation of the Fourth Congress on the Cadastre. Compared to the time before the Third Congress, the circumstances have significantly changed. New experience has been gained through the implementation of the aforementioned projects and some new issues have been opened as well. Particularly challenging is the quality electronic integration of basic registers. We hope it enables us to write quality articles in which gained experience is described and the answers to the open issues and challenges are provided. We believe that sharing knowledge and information with others is in the best interest of the profession and the economic and social development of Bosnia and Herzegovina. We expect you, distinguished colleagues, to put some effort into achieving these goals and hope that we all together will contribute to the success of the Fourth Congress on the Cadastre. Given that the Congress is a rare opportunity for presenting geodesy news and in accordance with the previous Congress practice, we are open for a number of papers not related to the specific topics of the Congress. We therefore invite you to share your experiences, views and ideas with the entire cadastral public in Bosnia and Herzegovina by addressing in your papers all topical and current issues pertaining to the cadastre.

Lastly, distinguished colleagues, we invite you to contribute to the prosperity of the cadastre and land administration in Bosnia and Herzegovina by your active participation in the Fourth Congress on the Cadastre in Bosnia and Herzegovina, either through the presentation of papers or active participation in the sessions of the Congress.

TECHNICAL PROGRAM

The Congress Program will consist of session presentations of accepted papers and the activities of the Federal Administration for Geodetic and Property Affairs (FGU) in the field of cadastre and spatial data infrastructure.

EXHIBITION

An exhibition of the surveying equipment and the software will be organized during the Congress. To take part in the exhibition, company representatives should submit their applications to the Organising Committee of the Congress by 15 September 2019.
